

AV Needs

You've probably seen AV riders that read like a rock star's tour contract: a separate dressing room, specific water temperatures, a fruit platter with the green M&Ms removed.

This is not that.

Matt is extraordinarily easy to work with and will handle everything directly with your AV team on-site, so you can focus on the hundred other things on your list.

In a perfect world, here's what Matt would love:

- A wireless lavalier microphone.

Honestly, anything that projects his voice will work. He's not picky.

- A projector and screen.

Matt's slides are designed to make people laugh and think in equal measure.

He'll need a way to project those slides, ideally with audience sightlines to the screen.

Your venue's laptop works great, but Matt always brings his as a backup in case.

- A clicker to advance slides.

Same deal - the venue's clicker is great, and Matt will have a backup, too.

That's it. Nice and simple.