

AV Needs

You've probably seen AV riders that read like a rock star's tour contract: a separate dressing room, specific water temperatures, a fruit platter with the green M&Ms removed.

This is not that.

Matt is extraordinarily easy to work with and will handle everything directly with your AV team on-site, so you can focus on the hundred other things on your list.

In a perfect world, here's what Matt would love:

- A wireless lavalier microphone.

Honestly, anything that projects his voice will work. He's not picky.

- A projector and screen.

Matt's slides are designed to make people laugh and think in equal measure. The brighter and higher quality, the better.

- A laptop to run the presentation.

Your venue's is fine and actually preferred—one less thing to carry through an airport. Matt always brings his own as a backup because he's the kind of person who brings a backup.

- A clicker to advance slides.

Same deal—Matt will bring one, but he's happy to use yours.

That's it. Nice and simple.